

Rogers Drums & Accessories

CATALOG No. 56

SPRING, 1956

Factory and Tannery, Covington, Ohio

Bronze Medal Award

This new modern Rogers factory and tannery, erected 105 years after the founding of this company, is dedicated to the development and the manufacture of quality drums and accessories according to the traditional high standards of the Rogers family for three generations.

Ever since 1849, when Joseph Rogers started producing drum and banjo heads, the name "Rogers" became synonymous with quality. The facsimile of the Rogers signature branded on heads was accepted by players as well as manufacturers of drums and banjos as "tops". This popularity became world-wide and earned for Rogers many prizes, including the Blue Ribbon and Bronze Medal Awards at the World's Columbian Exposition (see reproductions herewith).

The new Rogers drums with Perma-Built shells featured in this catalog were designed and engineered for modern needs and have consistently kept pace with the undisputed reputation of Rogers heads.

The expanded facilities in the new Rogers plant make it possible to add to the ever-growing line of Rogers products in the percussion field.
